

About Us

Our services are open to anyone of the Jewish faith, regardless of background and affiliation. Every Jew is automatically a member and so there are no formal dues or membership.

Services are held in the traditional manner, much like they were held for thousands of years. Yet, we have taken many steps to let even the beginners appreciate and feel part of the service.

Although the services are led in Hebrew, instructions and commentary are given in English. During the Torah reading, the Rabbi makes sure to give a short synopsis of the reading in English. In addition, all prayers books used are Hebrew/English version, and congregants are encouraged to pray in the language they understand best.
