

Rabbi & Leah Neubort

Rabbi Levi Neubort and family joined Anshei Lubavitch in January 2002. Prior to their arrival in Fair Lawn Rabbi Neubort served as Assistant Rabbi at Congregation Bnai Abraham in Brooklyn Heights and as the Jewish chaplain at four Downtown Brooklyn campuses: Brooklyn Law School, Pratt Institute, Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, and Long Island University. He also served as the chaplain at the Long Island College Hospital.

Rabbi Neubort brings with him a vast experience in children's programming, having worked at Jewish Summer Camps for over fourteen years. Most notably, he served as director of the Gan Israel Day Camp in Brooklyn and was the principal of the C-Bay Talmud Torah.

Rabbi Neubort was trained from young childhood through his Rabbinical Ordination at the central Lubavitcher Yeshiva, and at Yeshiva Tomchei Temimim in Kfar Chabad, Israel.

Currently, Rabbi Neubort serves as rabbi and executive director of Anshei Lubavitch.

Mrs. Leah Neubort holds the title "Rebbetzin" in her own right, not merely as the "Rabbi's wife." She too came to Fair Lawn with vast experience. Leah worked for years as counselor and head counselor in summer camps around the country. She worked as a teacher in Shaareth Israel, Flatbush, NY, and later in the Beth Rivkah Head Start program in Crown Heights, NY.

Leah earned perfect scores throughout her studies and holds a bachelor's degree in Psychology, and a Masters in Special Education.

Since moving to Fair Lawn, Leah is credited with opening and running the Anshei Lubavitch Daycare Centers which, thank G-d, currently serves over 250 children.
