STORY OF THE WEEK

The Chabad house on Gayly avenue in Los Angeles was the first Chabad house that was built to look like 770.

When Rabbi Shlomo Cunin, the head Shliach of California, had the plans made up at first he was not sure how the Rebbe would react, so he decided to give the Rebbe the plans thru the 'back door' so to speak, he gave it to the Rebbetzin so that she should show it to the Rebbe.

A couple of days later he was called to the Rebbetzin and she told him:

"Men iz zeyer tzufriden az men hut azoi lieb dem tate's shtub az men hut es nuchgemacht".

Translation: "We are very happy that the fathers (i.e. the previous Rebbe) house is so loved that it was copied".

Read it again. And again...
Are you still reading 'the' twice?
