STORY OF THE WEEK

The parents of a child who was gravely ill were told that he did not have long to live. The doctors advised them to take him to New York for a vacation so that he could at least enjoy the final weeks of his life.

The family traveled to New York, and while the boy and his father were walking around Manhattan, they saw a mitzvah tank. When the bochorim who were on mitvzoyim heard the story, they sent the father and son to the Rebbe for a yechidus.

During the yechidus, the Rebbe asked the boy to show him his heart. When the child did so, the Rebbe said that he did not see anything. This amazed his father, and when they paid their next visit to the doctor, the doctor could not believe the results of the latest x-ray. "I Don't understand what happened," said the physician, "but I Don't see anything there anymore."
